

MURDERER, UNDER ARREST IN CHICAGO,
PLEADS FOR DEATH

Arthur F. Falk, Slayer of Son,
Asks That "Miserable Life"
Might Be Ended

INQUEST IS HELD

Killed Boy Following Dispute; Result of Dare, It Is Said

CHICAGO, Aug. 29.—(INS)—Arthur F. Falk, Chicago park commissioner who shot and killed his only son, during a quarrel, with a gun he had given the boy for Christmas, today begged for death.

Sitting in his cell, overcome by grief, Falk pleaded with a guard to give him his gun that he might end his "miserable life."

At the inquest yesterday, Falk, still slightly under the effects of moonshine liquor, collapsed over the body of his son. He had to be carried bodily from the undertaking rooms.

Falk's only daughter, Vernice, who with her mother witnessed the tragedy in the Falk home, also collapsed at the inquest. The coroner continued the investigation until September 7th.

The shooting occurred early yesterday when the elder Falk came home under the influence of drink and quarreled with his son, Eldridge, 22.

When the father threatened to kill the boy if he left the house, the youth is said to have loaded the shotgun for him, bared his chest and dared him to shoot, saying "I would rather be dead than the son of a drunkard."

Falk, who is prominent in North-west Chicago politics, had never been arrested before in his life. It was said he never drank until about a year ago.

Jules F. Prevost
Weds Miss Watt

An interesting wedding of the late summer took place Saturday when Miss Margaret Alberta Watt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Louis H. Watt, of St. Davids, became the bride of Jules F. Prevost, son of Rev. Jules L. Prevost, of Langhorne.

The ceremony, which was performed by the father of the bridegroom, took place at 5 o'clock in St. Mary's Church, Wayne, and was followed by a reception at the home of the bride's parents.

The church was decorated with yellow chrysanthemums and greens, which formed an attractive background for the colorful gowns worn by the bridesmaids.

The bride wore a gown entirely made of white lace, which had a long train and was made on simple lines. The skirt was short, and her veil of lace and tulle was arranged in cap shape, adorned with orange blossoms. She carried white orchids, roses and lilies of the valley.

Mrs. Raymond F. Carlson was matron of honor for her sister and wore a gown of green chiffon and lace, with a horsehair hat to match, and green satin slippers. She carried a bouquet of cream-colored roses.

The bridesmaids were Miss Helen Janson, Miss Eleanor Johnson, Miss Emma C. Painter, Miss Helen McGregor and Miss Katherine Mather, of Philadelphia, and Miss Helen Wilson, of Pittsburgh. They were dressed in three different shades, two in rose, two in gold and two in orchid. Their gowns were of cream-colored flowered chiffon worn over colored taffeta, and were made with plain bodies, which had capes in the back, and skirts entirely made in petal effect. The hats were of beige horse hair, with streamers to match their dresses, and slippers which matched their gowns. The bouquets were of yellow chrysanthemums.

Mrs. Watt, mother of the bride, wore a gown of black and white chiffon over silver cloth, and a large black horsehair hat. She also wore a corsage of orchids.

Horace C. Prevost was best man for his brother, and the ushers included Percy Prevost, Howard H. Taylor, Patrick Reilly and Edward Frazier.

Upon their return from a wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Prevost will reside with Mr. and Mrs. Watt at St. Davids.

STATE NEWS

NEW CASTLE, Pa., Aug. 29.—(INS)—There are some persons who go through life treading an unpopular path by continually "roasting" things—but Jack Steffy, of Indiana, is one man who can get away with it and maintain his popularity.

Steffy was the official ox roaster at the Grange picnic here recently. It was his 192nd occasion at officiating as chef at such an affair.

An ex-chief of police of Indiana and a former butcher, Steffy can't remember how he ever drifted into his unique trade. Since he is practically without competition in his field, he says he has received calls from all over the United States to practice his trade.

Steffy says he likes the work. He claims it is not hard work and that patience and careful watching are prime requisites in satisfying his clientele. Steffy does his roasting in a little brick oven about 10 feet long and five feet wide.

ATHLETIC MEET MARKS CLOSE OF BRISTOL
PLAYGROUNDS FOR SUMMER; EVENTS HELD IN CONNECTION WITH 6TH WARD PROGRAM

Baby Parade, Folk Dances and Races Feature, With Miss Mary Wilkinson in Charge — Attendance There Considered Splendid as Well as That of Bath and Washington Streets Play Centers.

Friday, August 24th, was closing day in the Bristol playgrounds. In the sixth ward playground the supervisor, Miss Mary Wilkinson, staged an athletic meet. She was assisted by two of her pupils, Miss Edna Hubley, of 1509 Wilson avenue, and Miss Josephine Campbell, of 1614 Trenton avenue.

Joseph Boyer, of Garfield street, and Mrs. Leighton, of Hayes street, had charge of the track. Miss Wilkinson wishes to thank publicly these assistants who made the summer work such a success, and who succeeded in reaching the hearts of the pupils.

Miss Hubley conducted a sewing class for girls each day and her display of work accomplished was a credit to herself and her pupils. Miss Hubley and Miss Campbell also taught dancing to the girls and gave an exhibition of folk dancing on Friday.

The program started on Friday at 9.00 a. m. with stories told by the supervisor. Then the children were allowed to use the apparatus for an hour. At 10.30 the baby parade started, each entrant receiving a picture taffy at the end. The parade was headed by Little Miss Evon Soule, of Garfield street and Wilson avenue, who was a picture dressed as a miniature bride, accompanied by little Joseph McCole, of Wilson avenue, dressed as a miniature groom. Little Lois Kelly, also of Wilson avenue, was the bride's train bearer.

Then followed the babies in decorated coaches, who fell asleep along the route. They were: Teddy Stewart, Malcolm White, Barbara Custer and Mary Newman.

Johnny DuPont created much amusement in his impersonation of a baby. He was wheeled by his sister, Eleanor DuPont, dressed as mother, and James Dowd, dressed as father.

Next in line came Elsie Belli, dressed as a poppy; Rachel Belli, as a daffodil; and Mary Steinbrier, as a buttercup. Little Anne Boyer and Reta Bowers, both of Garfield street, were charming as May pole dancers. Jerry Young was a cowboy and James Corcoran an Indian.

Next followed a display of doll's dresses, dolls aprons, needle books, etc., made by the members of the sewing class.

The best seamstress, Margaret Stephenson, of 415 Jefferson avenue, was presented with a string of beads by the sewing teacher, Miss Hubley. The sewing class also presented the supervisor, Miss Wilkinson, with a bouquet of flowers in appreciation of her work.

A folk dance, taught by Miss Hubley, followed. The participants who received much applause were: Evelyn Force, Gertrude Pye, Anne Boyer, Veronica Leighton, Ardelle Pye and Beatrice Borchier. A harmonica solo by John Dougherty was then given and Walter Zwick, of Wilson avenue, sang "Let A Smile Be Your Umbrella." The Highland Fling, led by the teacher, Miss Campbell, followed and the program then shifted to the track. The winners in the events were:

100 yard dash for older boys, Walter Fagan and Billy Leighton; another 100 yard dash for younger boys, Stewart Rhodes and Harry Berry; 100 yard dash for older girls, Sylvia Snyder and Janice Chamberlain; 100 yard dash for smaller girls, Marie Martini, Ruth Richardson; basketball far throw, Robert Van Aiken.

The grand finale was a chariot race of Ben Hur against Messala. Ben Hur, who was impersonated by Joseph Kseniak, as driver, in a home-made chariot pulled by his brother, Michael Kseniak, who impersonated the prancing steed, came in ahead of Messala, in another home-made chariot.

All winners and participants received picture taffies as prizes.

Miss Hubley and Miss Campbell also received flowers for their assistance during the summer and their wonderful development in leadership.

Miss Marian Hellings, who acted as instructress at the Bath street playground during the past several weeks, announces the attendance was gratifying, although not as high as last year for that ward.

Many children likewise enjoyed the daily program and the apparatus at the Washington street playground this summer, under the supervision of Miss Mary Fine. The attendance is reported as very good.

JAIL AS AN AID TO LONG LIFE

When Warren McCray, once governor of Indiana, went to prison for irregularities in office the shadow of death was upon him. He was a pitiful spectacle, saddened and broken in health. It was feared imprisonment would hasten his death, but his return to freedom found his recovery in health complete.

Without suggesting the moral that a sure road to health is to the gates of a prison, the advantages of prison life as contrasted with the nerve-racking routine of a business man or high public official are apparent. Obviously the distinguished prisoner in question led regular hours. His food was simple, nourishing and adequate. If there was ever a striking illustration of what a common-sense diet and regular hours of sleep over a protracted period will accomplish, we have it in the dramatic career of the Hoosier farmer, politician and governor.

If the average person takes a hint as to the health-devouring capabilities of the human stomach, then all can see compensations from what seemed to be a very sad adventure. That term of imprisonment, while it may make life less worth the living, doubtless prolonged McCray's life some years.

Obviously, prison life isn't what it used to be. Prisoners are no longer placed in dark, damp cells to die of disease. Their health is better guarded than that of the average person with complete liberty. They do not work too hard, play enough, get sleep and food in healthful quantities and live in sanitary quarters. A healthy pan has supplanted the prison pallor.

NO BLOC OF WOMEN VOTERS

During the protracted fight for equal suffrage much was said by the agitators of the "woman's bloc" that would develop when women received the right to vote. Giving the ballot to the women would, many predicted, revolutionize politics because women voters would be united against the divided male forces.

If the male politicians had placed any credence in these extravagant claims, the nineteenth amendment would never have been ratified. They knew the woman voter would be no different from the man voter.

A prominent Republican woman has well expressed the attitude of the public in this matter. Her words are: "Women who vote for Herbert Hoover will do so as citizens and Republicans, not as a woman's bloc. They will vote for Hoover for the same reason that men will vote for him—because of his past record of ability, integrity and efficiency."

It would be exceedingly unfortunate for campaign work among women to result in the emergence of a woman's bloc. The women workers realize this and are avoiding it. With the advent of equal suffrage sex distinctions in the realm of politics were abolished once and for all. As active factors in the American electorate, women have assumed their rightful role—they are citizens, concerned primarily with the broad problems of citizenship.

INDIANS!

Corral! Corral! That was the terrible warning cry of the days of '49. Then—thundering hoofs, the wild rush of yelling, painted red men, as round and round sweeps the fiery, bullet-swept circle of death. It's one of a hundred breathless thrills in the greatest romance of them all.

"GLORIOUS BETSY," starring Dolores Costello, is a Warner Bros. picture production of this novel. Based on the play by Rida Johnson Young.

SYNOPSIS

The bewitching Betsy Patterson is staying at Sweet Springs Inn with her father and aunt. Surrounded by eager admirers she is secretly attracted to the handsome La Vert, her French tutor, who, unknown to her, has fought and won a duel in her behalf earlier in the story. Two French officers arrive at the inn while she is preparing for a lesson with La Vert. He is angry when he leaves her abruptly and does not see the officers salute. They greet La Vert as the runaway Captain Jerome Bonaparte, brother and American ambassador of Napoleon. He pleads with them for another week incognito at the Springs.

after the figure, laughing. "He pays me and he treats me like—a what they call—nigger. Should he discover who I am—it would throw him into apoplexy." He threw back his head and laughed heartily. "Is the daughter, your pupil, like her father?" Dufresne demanded, scowling after Patterson.

"Betsy? Ah, no—no!" Jerome smiled, his dark eyes gleaming far away again. "She is like no one you have ever seen before." St. Pierre and Dufresne exchanged a quiet smile. "Fire and ice she is! Gracious and haughty! Sweet and imperious! Proud as the devil! She is like a queen—an empress! She was born to command—and all men to follow, like humble, unquestioning slaves. Ah, glorious Betsy is perfection!"

"But you forget, sir, that you are the brother of the First Consul of France!" Dufresne interrupted the eulogy to the charms of the Baltimore Belle.

"Unfortunately, you will never allow me to forget that," Jerome retorted, smiling. "I should be more than glad, if it were possible."

"However, it is not," Dufresne answered. "How soon can you be ready to start?"

"Gentlemen, please," Jerome shook his head. "Just this once—it will not matter—out of a lifetime. Just one hour—and then you shall command me as you will. For one hour permit me to be Monsieur La Vert, and I shall ask nothing more, I promise. I swear it."

Dufresne and St. Pierre looked at each other. And St. Pierre nodded his head in acquiescence. "For one hour, then," he agreed. "And then you will be ready to leave for Baltimore."

"One hour!" Jerome held up his hand. "One hour, and I shall be ready. You will find entertainment within, gentlemen," he motioned towards the bar. "For one more hour I am Monsieur La Vert."

They nodded their heads in agreement and sought the pleasantly cool interior of the hostelry.

CHAPTER VI

With quick steps Jerome sought the Patterson suite. He hurried down the long hallway, but as he reached the door he paused and then slowly turned the big, brass handle of the double doors. He walked into the room with an outwardly unperturbed manner that belied his inner emotions. Betsy and Mary were seated in

SEVEN FAMOUS RACERS ENTERED ON N. J. TRACK

ATLANTIC CITY SPEEDWAY, Amatol, N. J., Aug. 29.—The names of seven internationally famous speed demons have been listed officially for competition in the third program of the 1928 campaign at the Atlantic City Speedway, at Amatol, N. J., September 16th.

Jimmy Gleason, the Philadelphia pilot, who led in both the Indianapolis and Altoona classics until accidents forced him out of both races, will compete, as will Lou Meyer, winner of the Altoona and Indianapolis events; Zeke Meyer, Ray Keech, holder of the world's speed record; Leon Duray, circular track champion; Fred Winal, winner of the Atlantic City race July 4 and Chester Gardner, who finished second in the race at Amatol on the Fourth of July.

TULLYTOWN WINS FROM BLACK HAWK ELEVEN

TULLYTOWN, Aug. 29.—Tullytown continued its winning ways, making it 14 in a row by completely outclassing the Holmesburg Black Hawks, 9 to 0, Sunday.

The visitors could do nothing with Fine, who won his 16th game of the season for the locals. "Bill" issued only one pass the entire game, also playing a wonderful fielding game, having eight assists. Wilkinson starred in the field with several sensational catches. Afterbach caught his usual good game, and gained two hits. Swangler and Hellings also fielded brilliantly.

For the Hawks, Moore and B. Cook were the stars.

One of the largest crowds of the season witnessed the game. This victory makes the season's record 19 victories and 3 defeats; one of the best records compiled by a local in a year.

SOUTHWEST TO OFFER RICKARD CHAMP TIMBER

By Robert A. Hereford
I. N. S. Staff Correspondent

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Aug. 30.—The great Southwest wishes to serve notice upon one George "Texas" Rickard, that he is to expect some likely looking talent from this neck of the woods for his heavyweight elimination tournament by which he will choose a successor to Gene Tunney's crown.

Since that summer's day in Toledo, when young Jack Dempsey hammered Jess Willard, the man mountain from Potawattamie, Kansas, the Southwest's say in the heavyweight forum has been less than "nada," which means "nothing" in the lingo of the Texas cowpuncher.

The Southwest remembers its golden years of heavyweight prominence and is scanning the boxing horizon for promising new material. While the Kansas plains at present offer no bumper crop of new Willards nor does the Galveston waterfront seem likely to produce many more dark giants like John Arthur Johnson, there are fighters in the heavyweight ranks here and about that bear watching.

The best of the Southwest's new crop of heavies, must be classed among the "dark menaces." He is Big Bill Hartwell, the huge negro who was discovered by a local promoter in the packing house district of Kansas City, Kansas. "Mistah William" stands 6 feet 4 inches and weighs 220 pounds. Some of William's victims have alleged that these are false figures, declaring that either one of the heavy fists "Mistah William" has laid upon their prominent physiognomies weighs twice that much. Although most of the men on William's long knockout list are of the usual "pale" class the very abrupt manner in which they have made their depart-ture augurs eloquently for the big negro's punch.

"Mistah William" recently bowled over the shell of the great Jack Johnson in a fight in Topeka. Although the pitiful old Johnson offered less resistance than many of the other big men "Mistah William" has swung to sleep that performance won the recognition of eastern promoters. Mr. Leo "Perapateic" Flynn, who maneuvered Jack Dempsey in his comeback trips now holds a share of William's contract.

The local negro recently knocked out Lee Anderson, an eastern black man in the eighth round of a ten round bout in Boston.

"Babe" Hunt, the sizable Oklahoman is another Southwestern youngster, who carries promise. Hunt, who has been in the professional ring for two years has the ability to improve materially with each new bout and has a creditable string of knockouts to his credit.

Less than six months ago there was a good deal of whooping in these parts over the possibilities of "Tiny" Roebuck, former All-American football star with the Haskell Indians. An Indian heavyweight champion to bring back the boxing prestige lost with the defeat of Willard, was the colorful prospect Southwestern fans were entertaining.

A PRACTICAL DUTCH COLONIAL TYPE

FIRST FLOOR PLAN

SECOND FLOOR PLAN

(By R. C. Hunter & Bro., Architects, New York)

This house combines an attractive Dutch Colonial exterior with a most complete and livable floor plan arrangement.

The sweep of the main roof out over the front porch, the graceful arches and small columns carry out the true spirit of the Dutch Colonial.

In addition to the four bed rooms and two baths of the second floor there are two servant's rooms and a bath on the third floor, no plan of which is shown. This gives a total of six bed rooms, ample accommodations for a rather large family.

A lot with a frontage of not less than seventy-five feet is required to give this house a proper setting.

Cost, about $11,800.

Complete working plans and specifications for this house may be obtained for a nominal sum from the Building Editor. Refer to House H-A-168.

A safe place to live—

This thought is uppermost in the minds of every individual seeking a place of residence today.

As to keeping children away from lanes of traffic

As to open spaces in which children may play

As to the general surroundings of the community.

SAFETY

in every sense of the word is typified in the modern dwellings which can be rented from me for $25 per month.

Every house is constructed of brick—safety from fire.

Every house is sewerage — safety from disease-breeding spots.

Every house is lighted by electricity—safety from antiquated lighting systems.

Every house faces on open spaces, thus having plenty of light and fresh air—safety as to health.

Every house is far from the main highways of traffic — safety for the children.
